ABOUT

About this report

Ultimate Beneficial Owners
This Ultimate Beneficial Owner report identifies shareholders as an Ultimate Beneficial Owner, either directly or indirectly via other linked entities, as configured by your FrankieOne settings. Often when trying to identify an Ultimate Beneficial Owner there can be many entities that are linked to the target entity. To determine an individual's overall shareholding, all shareholders of any linked entities must be traced. FrankieOne performs this tracing by traversing the target entity's shareholder tree and purchasing Current Extracts on each entity. This process continues until all linked entities are identified with the total shareholder calculation being based on the total number of shares owned, not the value of the shares, as reported by ASIC via the Current Extract. Beneficial ownership of shares calculated in this way is no indication of control of or other rights with respect to a company. FrankieOne provides no warranty as to the accuracy or currency of this information. The determination of who the beneficial owners are, for Adverse Media or other purposes, is your responsibility.

FrankieOne will also identify when a shareholder beneficially holds the shares or not. In these scenarios, the individual may be a nominee, a trustee of a trust or be on an account of another person. In scenarios where shares are jointly held by one or more entities, FrankieOne will treat each entity as if it owned those shares solely to ensure all beneficial owners are identified correctly. This entails that there are cases where the percentage total may crossover 100%. For instance, if there were two individuals who jointly own 100% of the shares, both individuals would be identified as 100% ultimate beneficial owners.
